PROVINCIAL JUNIOR TRACK AND FIELD MEET

The provincial junior track and field championship meet took place here yesterday, and despite the rain, was carried through without a hitch, proving intensely interesting to the large number of spectators who had gathered for the occasion.

Competitors for the various events appeared from practically all parts of Alberta and all events were keenly contested. It is regrettable, however, that very few local district athletes succeeded in landing prizes.

Owing to pressure of time, we are obliged to withhold publication of list of prize winners and general report of the day's proceedings, which will appear in complete form in our next week's issue.

Officials in charge declared that no other place in Alberta could stage such an event under rain conditions as did Blairmore. The track, with a light rain, was in perfect condition.

MILL RATE OF FORTY SUGGESTED

At the regular meeting of the Town Council on Monday night, estimates for town and school for the year 1932-33 were considered, with a view to arriving at a mill rate, which was figured at ten for the town and thirty for the school. The by-law covering same was given two readings, the third and final being held over till a special meeting to be held on Monday night next, at which it is expected members of the school board will be present to state whether or not further economy can be effected.

The school estimates, as submitted, would ask the town to provide in the neighborhood of $24,000 for school purposes, allowing the balance of the $27,000 necessary to come by way of provincial grant. To raise this amount would require a rate of 22 mills, but because of the uncertainty of raising sufficient to meet requirements up to the end of the calendar year, a slight increase in that rate is urged by the mayor.

With a combined rate of 40 mills, they are not going beyond last year's tax rate.

A number of ratepayers have expressed the opinion that certain salary cuts should be made, such as being done in the city of Calgary and a number of smaller districts in Alberta, as well as throughout our neighboring province to the west. Salaries of public officials have been pared to a considerable extent, and drastic economies are being practiced in all other branches of government.

"WULTIMATUM." We have searched our pure English dictionary for this term, but are unable to find anything like it. But this term was made use of by one of Wootton's "English-Speaking Rus-Am-Canadians" at a meeting in Bellevue on Saturday night. The speaker stated that he was going to declare a wultimatum to the effect that women and children hold solid, and not go pickin' berries—that something more than "boobing" would be used on Saturday to stop the fire bombs from working.

SCOUT NEWS

The chief event of the year is now thing of the past. For weeks past all have been eagerly looking forward to the summer camp, held on the last week in July at Allison Creek. A party of 10 camped out and had a glorious time.

Game in the district is now scarce, since the advent of the Cubs' bugle band.

Glorious weather, good and regular meals, with a good programme to occupy every available minute each day, tended to make the camp something to be remembered by those who were fortunate enough to be present.

The Wolf Cub flag was a cherished prize, being awarded to the cleanest tent daily, and very keen were the individual competitors to have possession. The various parts of the flag have now been secured by the kind donations of various residents of the town as follows: Blairmore B.E.S.L. $3.35, I.O.D.E. $3.00, J. H. Farmer, J. W. Graham, J. E. Gille, C. J. Tanguay, F. M. Thompson, R. Gray, Sgt. Akrit, 10 cents each. Mrs. J. M. Pihney 75c, Mrs. J. Warner, Mr. McDowell, G. M. Gilmer and Mr. Dixon 25c each; Mrs. J. B. Wilson $1.00—total: $14.00. Costs: Flax $5.25, pole $3.00, mount $1.75, cord $1.00, carrier 1.55, C.P.R. freight etc., 80c—total $33.45. Placed to credit of Cubs' funds $14.55.

At the close of camp, a sports programme was compiled, with the following events: 50 yards flat race, 60 yards race, 80 yards race, First Aid contest, threefold race, musical race, first alarm race, hopping race, cleanest boy in camp for week and cleanest boy each day. Many of the finals to the events are not yet completed. These will be run off later, and a list of winners will be published.

Many parents and friends visited the camp during the week and rendered valuable assistance in many ways. Thanks are also tendered to the West Canadian Collieries Ltd. for the use of supplies and trucks; also Mr. L. L. Morgan for the very liberal use of his truck for camp purposes. Mr. R. Oliver kindly assisted in transporting the party back from camp. Not forgetting Mr. W. L. Evans for a very liberal supply of camping utensils. Many persons also loaned tents, bunks, etc., which were greatly appreciated.

Many boys passed their tests in signalling, tracking, First Aid and physical tests. Among those specially qualifying were: J. K. Whitehead for second star; Billy Allen, Sid. Rudd, Sonny McDonald, John Petrick, Dick Morgan, Beecher Wilson, Herbert Jones, Frank Flemming, Gerald Robertson, Alex. Patterson, first star each.

The district commissioner visited the camp and was very well pleased with everything he saw, describing the same in his official report as an ideal camp.

As to the activities of the camp, one may trespass on the kindness and valuable time of the editor, as they are too numerous to mention in this issue.

Our best thanks to all who all contributed to making the camp a success.

United States Season For Ducks and Geese To Be One Month Longer

Restrictions imposed on hunting ducks and geese in the United States last year were so successful in promoting an increase in these game birds that the 1932 open season will be two months instead of one month allowed in 1931.

The season will be the October 1 to November 30 in the states bordering the Canadian prairie provinces, Minnesota, North Dakota and Montana. Throughout the country there will be a daily bag limit of 15, and a possession limit of 30, on all species of ducks.

Reporter Ate the Evidence

Investigation Regarding Cheese Had "To Be Called Off"

The reporter dropped into the civic relief depot at Oshawa, Ont., in search of news. He was feeling rather hungry. There was a piece of cheese. He ate it.

Then the trouble began. The cheese, it seems, had been returned by an altruistic householder, who declared it was absolutely unfit for human consumption. It was to have been examined by the medical health officer, food inspector, members of the relief committee and other officials. But, with this evidence gone, the investigation was called off.

Aviators Had Trying Time

Blown Off Course German Flyers Lost For Two Months

Two months ago Capt. Hans Bertram, 27, and Mechanic Adolph Klausmann took off from Koepang, Timor Island, for Darwin, Australia, 500 miles south, in their Junkers seaplane "Atlantis" they had left Germany three months prior, on a tour to boost German trade. From Koepang they never reached Darwin. For weeks flyers and foot parties searched the bush of Australia's north coast. Some black natives found the abandoned plane, and Capt. Bertram's cigarette case and a handkerchief, on the beach near Drysdale Mission, 100 miles northwest of Wyndham. Australian officials continued searching, dubiously. At last, one day a police launch brought Bertram and Klausmann ashore at Wyndham, nearly deranged by suffering. Blown off their course in the night the flyers had landed near Drysdale, thinking it was Melville Island. They had a few biscuits, no water. For days they tramped the bush in search of water, and friendly natives, and later drank the contents of the plane's radiator. On several occasions they plodded slowly to what they thought was a signal fire, arrived exhausted to find an unattended bush fire. They "caught" lizards on the rocks, which we ate ravenously. They fashioned a raft from one of their seaplane floats, peddled for five days in a rough sea, saw a steamer pass within a mile of them. Hunger drove them again ashore, to feed on snails and leaves. On the 38th day to our great excitement we sighted a hawk, which we brought a large fish, which we cooked and ate ravenously. We knelt and offered prayers to the good God for our deliverance.

In Remscheid, Prussia, Capt. Bertram's home, his mother had turned grey, his grandmother had died of grief.

Fewer Hand-Lace Workers

Old Industry In France Is Gradually Dying Out

Attention is being called to the discouraging decline in the hand-made lace industry in France. When the few remaining lace-makers, mostly very old women in the remote corners of Flanders and the Vosges districts, have died, it will probably be next to impossible to find anyone to take their places. Prices will of course rise and those who possess collections of fine old lace will be able to ask large sums for them.

High tariff barriers have made exportation practically prohibitive, the one remaining open market being Belgium, a country which makes nearly all of her own lace consumption. Low wages are also discouraging the lace workers who find that they can earn far more at packing sardines on other less artistic work.

Machine Makes Rain For Russian Farms

Tests Of Device Said To Have Proved Satisfactory

An artificial rainmaker termed at Leningrad, the first in the world, has been produced by the special institute for artificial rain.

The rain-making machine develops current at 75,000 volts and preliminary tests are stated to have proved highly satisfactory.

A second apparatus, with a capacity of 500,000 has been put into construction. This larger machine is expected to produce even more startling deluges.

It is understood that this apparatus and others which the institute plans to construct will eventually be installed in central Asia and in sections of the Volga region where a scant natural rainfall often hampers crops.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

AUGUST 14

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS II.

Golden Text: "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."—Leviticus 19, 18.

Lesson: Exodus 20:12-17.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 15.

Explanations and Comments

The Law Of Filial Piety, verse 12—"Thou shalt honor—love and respect—thy father and thy mother. This is the first commandment with promise, Ephraim 5:1; "that thy days may be long in the land which Jehovah thy God giveth thee." "The promise coupled with this command in common with almost all the promises made to the ancient people of God, applies rather to the nation than to the individual. The people among whom the sacredness of the family ideal is maintained, whose children render obedience to their parents during the time of immaturity, and always honor them, will be the nation of strength, retaining its hold upon its own people, and adding: "The motive was not the highest motive, nor, for us, could it be the true one; but for slaves just escaped out of Egypt, it was wise."—H. W. Beecher.

The Law Of Life, verse 13—"Thou shalt not kill." The Hebrew word here translated "kill" is not the usual word for kill; the English Revised Version (not the American), translates the sentence, "Thou shalt do no murder." The prohibition does not include every kind of killing, but only the kind which we call murder. One who kills a man in order to save his own life or the lives of others is not guilty of murder. One who commits murder is actuated by a personal motive or passion, and is in a battle to win, or to win by personal feeling against the one whom he kills; he is fighting for his country, or for the lives of others, and does not violate this commandment.

The Law Of Purity, verse 14—"Thou shalt not commit adultery." Recall Jesus' words about this commandment in Matthew 5:27-32. Jesus lifted the whole matter to a high plain when He said it was impossible to deal with the question of lust unless we dealt with it in the thought state. Jesus said that the man who indulges in evil mental attitudes is guilty, and from this indictment He would not excuse the woman who by act or dress is partner to this mental state on the part of the man.—Arthur E. Holt.

The Law Of Honesty, verse 15—"Thou shalt not steal." "Borrowing without the permission of the lender is embezzlement under another name, even though it be done temporarily, against the receipt of a check or order, or an intention to make the default good later on. Such articles in common use as umbrellas, handkerchiefs, are often 'borrowed' by people of defective memory. Short weight, scant measure, adulterated goods, excessive prices, revealed wages, underselling to squeeze out a rival, are things so widespread that men are apt to pass unchallenged and practice them with an easy conscience."—Allan Poole.

The Law Of Truthfulness, verse 16—"Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor." See Exodus 23, 1, 2; Deuteronomy 19:15-20. The law charges primarily to false evidence in a court of justice, and then, naturally, to any false testimony about another given under any circumstances. Few seem wronged by omission of some sort. A new era is dawning upon us for public measures must now stand upon their own merits, and nefarious projects can no longer be supported by a name.

The Law Of Deceit, verse 17—"The last of the Ten Words differs radically from the rest. It closes the section of the table and refers to it as only to man's relations to his fellows, but his relation to himself. Not only is he to suppress all those acts which disrupt his relationship to God and man; he is to check and control all those impulses which surge up within his heart; he is to regulate and purge the very sources of action.

Selling Emperor's Treasures

Tourists Are Offered Articles Belonging To Former Chinese Rulers

The treasures of an emperor—many emperors really—are sold weekly in the sacred precincts of the Forbidden City. An advertisement in the newspapers attracts romantic foreigners when it offers "once in a history for you to obtain silk, brocade, embroidery, tea, etc., from China's former Imperial Household."

The articles on sale represent but a portion of the great chests full of tribute stored away by emperors during the centuries of mystery connected with the dwellers of the Forbidden City. Every Sunday from ten to four certain pavilions of the palace are turned into sale rooms where the articles are disposed of at moderate prices with full consent of the national government.

Study Terrestrial Magnetism

Well-Equipped Expedition To North Will Investigate Polar Disturbances

The observations being carried out by the "Aution" Polar Expedition which will be stationed at Chesterfield Island this winter will be of great importance to Hudson Bay shipping. It was learned from members of the party who arrived at Churchill, those who will go north are: Frank T. Davies, M.Sc., McGill University, in charge of the party; S. T. McVeigh, B.Sc., research assistant, chemical engineer, Queen's University, Kingston; Dr. B. W. Currie, University of Saskatchewan, physicist; John F. Rea, observer and astronomer.

Chesterfield Island is situated within the realm of the most violent magnetic disturbance, which often render ordinary compasses valueless at times, and which have proved one of the arguments against the success of Hudson Bay as a shipping route.

The party has the most elaborate equipment ever brought into the north for the study of terrestrial magnetism, earth currents, aurora and meteorological and upper air work.

It is expected that their studies will make a definite contribution to the relief of problems of navigators within the magnetic disturbance zone.

THE HOUSE OF DREAMS-COME-TRUE

—BY—
MARGARET FEEHAN
Author of
"The Splendid Policy," "The Harlot of Far East,"
Hodder & Stoughton, Ltd., London.

No one, watching Jean as she accompanied Burke to the kitchen premises and assisted him in the preparation of their supper, would have imagined that she was acting her part in any other capacity than that of willing playmate. She was wise enough not to exhibit any desire to leave him alone during the process of carrying the requisites for the meal from the kitchen into the living-room. She had noticed the sudden mistrust in his watchful eyes and the way in which he had instantly followed her when, at the commencement of the proceedings, she had unthinkingly started off down the passage from the kitchen, carrying a small tray of table silver in her hand, and thereafter she refrained from giving him the slightest ground for suspicion. Together they cooked the chops, together laid the table, and finally sat down to share the appetizing results of their united efforts.

Throughout the little meal Jean preserved an attitude of detached friendliness, laughing at any small joke that dropped up in the course of conversation and responding gaily enough to Burke's efforts to entertain her. Now and again, as though unconsciously, she would fall into a brief reverie, apparently preoccupied with the choice that lay before her, and at these moments Burke would refrain from distracting her attention, but would watch intently with those burning eyes of his, the charming face and sensitive mouth touched to a sudden new seriousness that appealed.

By the time the meal had drawn to an end, his earlier suspicions had been lulled into tranquillity and over the making of the coffee he became once more the big, overgrown school-boy and jolly comrade of his less tempestuous moments. It almost seemed as though, to please her, to atone in a measure for the mental suffering he had thrust on her, he was endeavoring to keep the vehement lover in the background and show her only that side of himself which would serve to reassure her.

"I rather fancy myself at coffee-making," he told her, as he dexterously manipulated the little coffee machine. "There"—pouring out two brimming cups—"taste that, and then tell me if it isn't the best cup of coffee you ever met."

Jean sipped it obediently, then made a very face.

"Ough!" she ejaculated in disgust. "You've forgotten the sugar!"

As she had herself slipped the sugar-basin out of sight when he was collecting the necessary coffee paraphernalia on a tray, the oversight was not surprising.

It was a simple little ruse, its very simplicity its passport to success. The naturalness of it—Jean's small, screwed-up face of disgust and the hasty way in which she set her cup down after tasting its contents—might have thrown the most suspicious of mortals momentarily off his guard.

"By Jove, so I have!" instinctively Burke sprang up to rectify the omission. "I never take it myself, so I forgot all about it. I'll get you some in a second."

He was gone, and before he was half-way down the passage leading to the kitchen, Jean, moving silently and swiftly as a shadow, was at the door of the long French window, her fingers fumbling for the catch.

A draught of cold, mist-laden air rushed into the room, while a slender form stood poised for a brief instant on the threshold, silhouetted against the white curtain of fog. Then followed a hurried rush of flying footsteps, a ditting shawl cleaving the thick pall of vapour, and a moment later the wreaths of pearls mist came filtering unheeded into an empty room.

Blindly Jean plunged through the dense mist that hung outside, her feet sinking into the sodden earth as she fled across the wet grass. She had no idea where the gate might be, but sped desperately onwards till she rushed full tilt into the bank of mud and stones which fenced the bungalow against the moor. The sudden impact nearly threw her, and all the breath out of her body, but she dared not pause. She trusted that his search for the hidden sugar-basin might delay Burke long enough to give her a few minutes' start, but she knew very well that he might chance upon it at any moment, and then, discovering her flight, come in pursuit.

Clawing wildly at the bank with hands and feet, slipping, sliding, bruised by sharp-angled stones and pricked by some unseen bushy growth of gorse, she scrambled over the bank and came sliding down upon her hands and knees into the hedge-rough dug up to its further side. And even as she picked herself up, shaken and gasping for breath, she heard a cry from the bungalow, and then the sound of running steps and Burke's voice calling her by name.

The strange silence of the mist-laden atmosphere seemed her round like the silence of a tomb, broken only by the sucking sound of the oozy turf as it pulled at her feet, clogging her steps. Lance-aster spikes of gorse stabbed at her ankles as she trod it underfoot, and the permeating moisture in the air soaked swiftly through her thin summer frock till it clung about her like a winding-sheet.

Her breath was coming in sobbing gasps of stress and terror; her heart pounded in her breast; her limbs, impeded by her clinging skirts, felt as though they were weighted down with lead.

Then, all at once, seeming close at hand in the misleading fog which plays odd tricks with sound as well as sight, she heard Burke's voice, calling as he ran.

With the instinct of a hunted thing she averted sharply, stumbled, and lurched forward in a vain effort to regain her balance. Then it seemed as though the ground were suddenly cut from under her feet, and she fell . . . down, down through the mist, with a scattering of crumbling earth and rubble, and lay, at last, a crumpled, unconscious heap in the deep-cut track that linked the moor road to the bungalow.

CHAPTER XXVIII

They Who Waited

Lady Anne sat gazing absently into the heart of the fire, watching the restless leap of the flames and the little scattered handfuls of sparks, like golden star dust, tossed upward into the dark hollow of the chimney by the blazing logs. The "warm and sunny south"—at least, that part of it within a twelve-mile radius of Dartmoor—is quite capable, on occasion, of belaying its guide-book designation, particularly towards the latter end of summer, and there was a raw dampness in the atmosphere this evening which made welcome company of a fire.

It seemed a little lonely without Jean's cheery presence, and Lady Anne, conscious of a craving for human companionship, glanced impatiently at the clock. Blaise should surely have returned by now from his all-day conference with the estate agent.

She had not much longer to wait. The quick hoof-beats of a trotting horse sounded on the drive outside, and a few minutes later the door of the room was thrown open and Blaise himself strode in.

"Well, madonna," he stooped and kissed her. "Been a lonely lady today without all your children?"

She smiled up at him.

"Just a little," she acknowledged. "When I came back from those stupid committees, which are merely an occasion for half the old tabbies in the village to indulge in a squabble with the other half, I couldn't help feeling it would have been nice to find you here to laugh over them with me."

Jean's sense of humour is refreshing; it never lets one down. However, I suppose she's enjoying her beloved Moor by moonlight, so I mustn't grumble."

Blaise shook his head.

"Much moonlight they'll see!" he observed. "I rode through a thick mist coming back from Hedge Barton. It'll be a blanket fog on Dartmoor tonight."

"Oh, poor Jean! She'll be so disappointed."

Tormarin sat down on the opposite side of the hearth and lit a cigarette. The dancing firelight flickered across his face. He was thinner of late, his mother thought with a quick pang. The lines of the well-beloved face had deepened; it had a worn—almost ascetic—look, like that of a man who is constantly contending against something.

Lady Anne looked across at him almost beseechingly.

"Don't," she said, "have you quite made up your mind to let happiness pass you by?"

He started, roused out of the reverie into which he had fallen.

"I don't think I've got any say in the matter," he replied quickly. "I've forfeited my rights in that respect. You know that!"

"And Jean? Are you going to make her forfeit her rights, too?"

"She'll find happiness—somehow—elsewhere. It would be a very short-lived affair with me"—bitterly. "After what has happened, its existence I'm not to be trusted with a woman's happiness."

There were sounds of arrival in the hall. Nick's voice could be heard issuing instructions about the bestowal of his fishing tackle. Lady Anne spoke quickly.

"I don't think so, Blaise. Not with the happiness of the woman you love." She laid her hand on his shoulder as she passed him on her way into the hall to welcome the wanderer returned. "Tell Jean," she advised, "and see what she says. I think you'll find she'll be willing to risk it."

When she had left the room Blaise remained staring impassively into the fire. His expression gave no indication as to whether or not Lady Anne's advice had stirred him to any fresh impulse of decision, and when, presently, his mother and Nick entered the room together, he addressed the

Ottawa's Official Hostess

Lady Perley Who Is Wife Of Senior Cabinet Minister

The marriage of the Prime Minister's sister to Hon. W. D. Herridge, Canadian minister to Washington, has changed the social order of precedence in the capital.

At the Imperial Conference of 1930, the then Miss Bennett took precedence with her brother, and had she remained Miss Bennett would have been his official hostess for all the social affairs of the conference. Being married, however, she now ranks as the wife of a minister.

Lady Perley, therefore, becomes lady hostess for the conference. Sir George Perley being the senior member of the Cabinet next to the Prime Minister. He was sworn in as a privy councillor October 10, 1911.

As Hon. Hugh Guthrie became a privy councillor on July 15, 1919, Mrs. Guthrie stands next to Lady Perley. Hon. E. N. Rhodes was sworn in on February 22, 1921, so Mrs. Rhodes comes next. Hon. R. J. Manion preceded Hon. H. H. Stevens on September 21, 1921, by one day, so that Mrs. Manion has priority over Mrs. Stevens. Curiously enough, all these members of Mr. Bennett's Cabinet are his senior as privy councillors, as he did not become a privy councillor until October 4, 1921.

Since Miss Bennett's marriage Lady Perley has entertained official guests, and in her absence Mrs. Hugh Guthrie.

Jungle Pets In London

Not All Of Them Behind Bars In Regent's Park

There is many a jungle animal in London. Most of them are safely housed behind bars in Regent's Park. But not all. Here and there among the sedate Victorian mansions of Knightsbridge and Mayfair are others, kept in private households as domestic pets, creatures ranging from Siamese cats to Malayan sun bears, from kinkajous to snakes. One man keeps a snake, called Jacobson, a North American king snake, which curls up in armchairs and startles the visitor by peeping from behind the soft velvet cushion, with flat head and darting black tongue. Almost any fine day last summer there appeared in one of the quiet West End squares a woman with a Malayan sun bear—a short-haired creature, half-bear, half-monkey. It was about the size of a cat, had no difficulty in tree-climbing which it was allowed to do on a leather lead. Its owner said that she got endless fun out of it. Another woman is to be seen in Kensington Gardens leading a sooty angabey—one of the nimble African monkeys—on a chain. It seems a nervous creature, and on seeing a dog jumps into its mistress's arms for protection. Yet apparently it is an engaging companion. At its home it has been taught to sit at table to take its meals and behave with the most approved Mayfair manners.

Douglas' Egyptian Liniment is remarkable in its quick, effective action. Relieves instantly burns, sprains, toothache and neuralgia. Invaluable for sore throat, croup and quinsy.

European women in Egypt are becoming expert camel drivers.

Artificial ice is not new. It was industrially used as far back as 1880.

All Her Children Were Troubled With Diarrhoea

Mrs. J. J. Bickert, R.R. 1, Enderby, B.C., writes:—"Last Summer all my children were troubled with diarrhoea, and were so bad I did not know what to do. A friend told me to give them Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, so I got a bottle, and after a couple of doses you should have seen the change. The children were soon well again, and I am very thankful to your wonderful remedy. I find it the only one that relieves so easily and quickly."

COWLEY HAPPENINGS

Inspector Brommer was in town on Monday, looking over the most likely site for the new school.

On Saturday evening last, an accident of a rather serious nature occurred at Dr. Blair, of Michel, left the highway and upset. The accident occurred when Dr. Blair, accompanied by his wife and Dr. Murchie, also of Michel, were taking a curve of the road when a bee, which had gotten into the car, causing it to swerve from side to side of the road, finally taking the ditch and turning over several times, damaging it to the extent of a few hundred dollars and quite seriously injuring the occupants.

Dr. McIntosh, of Pincher Creek, who happened along at the time, took the unfortunate party in to the hospital at Pincher Creek, where a doctor was called and upon examination found that Dr. Blair had received a bad head wound, making it necessary to have nine stitches inserted in it. Mrs. Blair sustained minor injuries around the body, while Dr. Murchie was badly shaken up and dazed.

Mrs. Robert Welch, of Lundbreck, who has been on the sick list, is feeling much better, we are glad to say.

Mr. and Mrs. Hector Lemire and family spent the week end visiting relatives and friends at Macleod over the week end.

Misses Edith and Gladys Baines, of Lethbridge, accompanied by their brother Algie, were visitors to Cowley on Saturday afternoon.

Rev. Father O'Dea, in company with friends from Calgary, is now on a holiday trip by motor to the Pacific coast. He will return in a few days and again resume the duties of his church here.

Matthew O'Dea, of Montreal, is on an extended visit here with his son, Rev. Father O'Dea.

Lawrence Peel, of Lundbreck, has a field of sixty-five acres of very fine spring wheat, which stands about four feet tall, with heads measuring around five inches and filling well. Sweet clover was drilled along with this wheat when it was seeded in the spring. This particular field of wheat is making a more rapid growth than other fields beside it that were seeded at the same time, but without the sweet clover. Mr. Peel has great faith in the sweet clover as a rejuvenator of the soil and for stock. He uses it as a feed for his dairy cows and has good results while feeding it.

The hay crop in this district, which is making a good yield, is mostly cut and now standing in stacks. There has been some reports of splendid yields of sweet clover and brome grass being cut for feed. The cutting of fall wheat is now in full swing, with some fields promising heavy yields in several localities.

The funeral of a Doukhobor woman by the name of Bojery, who died at the colony on the old Godsal place, was held late Sunday afternoon from the home to the Doukhobor cemetery near Lundbreck, where interment took place. On the advent of a funeral, a rather strange custom with the Doukhobors here is the conducting of it throughout the whole day, with a great deal of singing and prayer over their dead. As this funeral procession passed through town, a cortege of fifteen wagons, full of Doukhobors, who sang all the way, followed the body to its last resting place. On their return from a funeral, they often sing until midnight.

On Sunday afternoon, on home ground, the Cowley baseball team went down to defeat to the River squad to the tune of 10 to 3. Wake up, Cowley!

CORRESPONDENCE

Hillcrest, Alta., August 10, 1932.

Dear Editor:—Would you please grant me space once more to answer "Puzzled" and "Another Ratepayer."

"First of all I wish to call your attention to an error on your part. I did not give myself away by saying which sex it was; that was conditioned. But you put 'that' instead of 'them.' However, I must state it was not a lady teacher, but a man teacher, that was conditioned."

Yes, "Puzzled" one's answer to your question is: My husband has his own interpretations of his own version. "Subject to change without notice" the same as any other sane person. I do not lead him, nor he me; he is not a case of "What Dickie doeth, I do also," you know that.

The garbled statements were too much for you, eh, Well, nevertheless, alas, true.

Our trustees know they could have done better by giving me a chance in the vacancies open, also in place of the man teacher that is kept on by our trustees with a report left open by the inspector of last term and taken on condition.

The trustees did do their work without fear or favor, but when a meeting was to be called they feared. One said they had a good excuse for not taking home teachers; another said he would resign if there was any bother, and they were the two trustees that noised it around that the substitute was as good as taken on. The chairman, being in favor of home teachers, said at the meeting that they could not agree over those to be taken on, after sitting for hours. (There is a bigger hiding somewhere, which dare't be let loose).

For "A Ratepayer's Information" how the school is run, know that it is run, also, how it should be run, that answers why my letter to the Enterprise. Your chairman is your spokesman, and a good thing for you trustees; he gave you the opportunity of knowing quite.

"Another Ratepayer": I wonder what you think our editor is for, to print for you alone? Our editor prints for all, if he doesn't, he should, of course, within bounds.

No, "Ratepayer," does not pay all the taxes in Hillcrest. If he did he would do different than, has been done, or would try to. We know those trustees are not paid, but those paid we expect their duties to do.

"The trustees may be 'Old Timers,' but two out of three are not as 'Old Timers' as we are; and if the trustees had done what they said they would do, if he doesn't, he should not have got those 'nasty insinuations.'"

All of us are apt to make mistakes; we know; but not mistakes as these. You ask "What's the trouble? Simply 'it' because the trustees did not say exactly as I think." No, the trouble as I told you is, the trustees did not do as they said they were going to do. Two of the trustees said that the substitute was as good as taken on, and nothing had to be said (there is a bigger hiding somewhere, which dare't be let loose).

When that meeting was held, our trustees in a whole crowd did not agree. They are not paid; we know; but it was pretty mean not to give our local teachers a chance to teach when they said they were going to give them a chance. Blairmore has five or six local teachers, as well as Bellevue, and the trustees of these schools must be given credit for giving them a trial and a beginning in life.

You go on to say "Mr. Ratepayer doesn't want any cut himself." Well, you might be hurt if I told you the answer to this; but must admit, that some people do get more than they should. Some should have what they get, and others a little more, so to solve the problem, we that get what we should, and those that get more than they should, should help those that don't get enough on which to live.

Yes, we have a car, two or three years old, and it is assessed at 80% of its value. I understand, as assessed at 25% off, which amounts to the same. Perhaps you have a car, too, and have run it more than the "pretty well fixed" ones do. You also may be one of those ratepayers pretty well fixed, and don't wish to see another given a chance to live.

However, I have no gall to want the trustees to hire who I want. I'm neutral and fight for all concerned. The rail lies in yourself not seeing how the trustees have acted; and in not seeing that the teachers (some very few) are two highly paid for what they do.

I'm sure, no one would grumble at a job, and having his own way, as you refer to under the heading of secretary-treasurer, Principal, inspector and janitor. It really would be lovely these days.

I'm glad my letter aroused you, "Another Ratepayer." The whole letter was the truth.

Thanking you for your space, Mr. Editor.

Lessons Of The Depression

A cabinet minister in one of the prairie provinces has expressed the view that the present business depression in this country is "a blessing in disguise" because it is teaching people many lessons which it is in their own interests and in the interests of the country at large they should learn.

While one can agree that many people are learning some rather hard lessons these days, taught in the school of bitter experience, we are hardly prepared to go so far as to regard such experiences as "blessings," even in a disguised form. The men and women out of work in cities and towns, and the farmers who have suffered complete crop failure year after year, and who have not been able to market such meagre crops as they may have succeeded in raising at a price above the cost of production, and both of which groups have, of necessity, been forced to subsidize Government and Municipal relief, and go deeper into debt for that relief, fall to see where the "blessings" come in.

But it cannot be denied that some valuable lessons are being learned, hard and bitter though the experience of learning those lessons may be. And if these lessons are thoroughly learned, taken to heart and not forgotten when the difficult days of the present have passed, then the trials and hardships of the present will not be all loss; there will be some profit in future years.

Quite a few people, for example, have learned to appreciate the value of having a little something in reserve, something laid by for a rainy day, as the old adage puts it, or, perhaps, on the prairies we could more appropriately say, for a dry year. The mistake of spending up to the last dollar of one's income in years when they had incomes has been impressed upon thousands of people, and it is probably safe to predict that, when once again these people are in receipt of incomes in excess of their actual living requirements, they will lay something aside by small instalments from their weekly wages or annual farm operations.

Governments, too, have probably had the lesson enforced upon them that they likewise must accumulate reserves in years of prosperity to tide themselves and their people through the lean years, rather than, as in the past, embark on large spending programmes when revenues are large and easy to collect. Public debts should be reduced in good years, because they are bound to rise in bad years. When times are generally prosperous, Governments can afford to hold off large programmes of public works and construction, and proceed with them when general employment declines and it is necessary to provide work.

Governments and large industrial employers of labor, it is to be hoped, have also learned to appreciate the fact that they have an obligation towards all the people on the one hand and their own employees on the other, and that the profits accruing to industry in good years must not, in the future, be all distributed in dividends to shareholders, or held in reserve to pay dividends when business drops off, but that an adequate percentage of those profits must be set aside in some form of unemployment insurance in order to provide protection for the workmen who assisted to create those profits. In future labor in industry must be protected just as effectively as the shareholders in industry. Many large concerns realize this, and even welcome it, but it is the duty of Governments to see that it is universally adopted.

Another lesson that is being learned is the wisdom of putting all one's eggs in one basket, or, to quote an old proverb, in good times many business men have re-invested all their profits in expanding their businesses far beyond the needs of normal years. They have acted as if "boom" conditions would always prevail, with the result that when business declined they had plants on their hands, with heavy overhead expenses, which it was impossible to carry under decreased business conditions. The same thing can be said of many farmers. When crops were good and prices high, they bought more and yet more land, more machinery, more everything, frequently borrowing large sums to enable them to do these things. Then with smaller crops and lower prices they found they could not make money, could not pay their debts, while all up in so-called fixed assets, which often turned out to be fixed liabilities, they could have carried on without much worry.

Lack of ready money in this depression has taught many of us how to really economize; how many things we can do for ourselves if we will; how many things we must not need which we formerly thought we must have. A list of such things, each perhaps small in itself, could be given that would fill this newspaper column. And we are actually better off for the doing of things for ourselves instead of having somebody do them for us.

Some readers may think we are advocating a lower standard of living. Not at all. The standard of living in this country should mount steadily higher and higher. The difficulty is that we have confused what is essential to a high standard of living and what is not. Some things are essential to such a standard, but many things we have regarded as essential are not; rather they are pure luxuries, and these we should do without until we are well able to afford them. They should never be purchased until some reserve has first been accumulated.

Less mushroom growth; less waste and extravagance than in the past; continued economy in the matter of non-essentials such as we have been forced to practice recently; the building up of some reserve—these are requirements for the future; they constitute some of the lessons of the depression.

Contribution To Science

Report New Scientific Discovery
Made By Curie Family At Paris

Mme. Marie Curie's family has made a new contribution to science. The discovery of a ray stopped more easily by common paraffin than by lead is reported in Nature, British Journal of pure science.

Irene Curie, daughter of the famous woman scientist, and P. Joliot, the daughter's husband, report the discovery and say this ray is probably a beam of neutrons, almost infinitely tiny things hailed as new "ultimate particles" of matter.

The discovery offers light on the possible nature of neutrons.

Canada Leads In Canned Salmon Imports Of Great Britain

Canada in the first six months of 1932 has definitely maintained the leadership in the canned salmon imports of Great Britain, which she captured from the United States a year ago. British trade figures show that in the first six months of 1930, the United States supplied 10,057,264 of the total import of 22,166,032 pounds, and Canada was second with 4,695,706. In 1931 Canada assumed first place with 9,950,544 pounds, and United States was second with 7,140,896. This year Canada sent 8,991,808 and United States 3,977,294.

Hatching Wild Ducks

Nature is being assisted in keeping up the supply of wild ducks for the sportsmen of Manitoba. Eight thousand young wild ducks have been hatched in incubators and are now learning to swim in the waters of Lake Winnipeg. Eggs were gathered near the lake and the young birds, although hatched by artificial means, present a healthy appearance. The experiment has been so successful that it is proposed to hatch 16,000 in this way next year.

Conference At Lausanne Marked A Great Step Forward

To speak of the Lausanne Conference as if it were a European conspiracy against the United States is totally wrong. Lausanne marked a great step forward. It showed the European nations have returned to sanity, after all the madness of war and post-war nationalism. Because the Lausanne settlement will sooner or later bring the United States to a reconsideration of war debts, that inevitable result is not brought about by the desires of the Lausanne negotiators but only by their mutual recognition of their helplessness in the face of existing conditions.

New York Girl Flies Regularly To Southern Plantation

Flying over five countries while commuting between New York and Puerto Rico, Miss Clara Livingston at the controls of her own plane makes a solo flight of some 2,000 miles several times a year as casually as most women drive their automobiles to town. Having inherited a plantation in Puerto Rico, Miss Livingston, whose home is in Jamaica, N.Y., finds air transportation the most efficient aid in helping her attend to her business and widely separated interests. She is one of the few women who fly in Latin America.

Her arrival at Miami brings out as many government officials as would a steamship, as she must be cleared by the customs officers, the health officer, the immigration officer, and the plant board.

New Question Raised

U.S. Customs Asked To Refund Duty Charged On Goods Made At Sea

The United States Supreme Court was asked to decide whether customs duties can legally be imposed on articles produced on the high seas.

The question was raised by the Proctor and Gamble Manufacturing Company of Cincinnati on the importation of whale oil used in the manufacture of soap.

Under protest it paid a duty of six cents a gallon on the oil, taken in the Ross Sea by Norwegian seamen under contract and brought suit to recover the money.

The trial court held that ships at sea and the property in them are a part of the country to which the ship belongs and that the whale oil was taxable as coming from Norway.

CANADA OFFERS TO DIVERT TRADE TO MOTHERLAND

Ottawa, Ont.—United States may lose millions of dollars as a result of a reciprocal trade offer made by Canada to Great Britain at the Imperial Economic Conference. Canada offered a market for $150,000,000 in British products in return for preferential treatment for wheat, lumber, butter, fish, dairy products, live cattle, meats, including bacon; metals, vegetables and fruits.

Canada will admit free of duty, or ever lowered tariff barriers hundreds of British goods, including iron and steel products, anthracite coal, brass products, automobiles, glass goods and possibly chemicals, boots and shoes and some lines of cotton goods.

If the two countries come to a definite agreement it will mean an influx into Canada of United States branch factories.

In iron and steel products alone, Canada imported $81,000,000 from United States last year and $13,383,600 from Great Britain. Canadian imports of anthracite coal from United States totaled $14,654,000 and from Great Britain $4,745,800. It is proposed by Canada that it throw open to Great Britain its market for iron and steel and anthracite coal, diverting as much trade as possible from United States and other non-empire countries.

The Canadian offer will be considered by the British delegation and a definite decision made within a few days.

Transients At Calgary

Unemployed From Coast Cause Serious Situation At Foothills City
Calgary, Alberta.—Several hundred unemployed transients from British Columbia are walking Calgary Streets after journeying from the Pacific Coast province via the Canadian National Railway. From 150 to 200 men drop off nearly every train from British Columbia, resulting in a serious situation here.

A number of the transients maintain they were forced out of British Columbia by the closing down of relief camps. They declare those who are non-resident in British Columbia are told to leave the province.

Port Ready For Business

Deep Sea Pier At Churchill Is Practically Finished
Churchill, Man.—While the rattle of riveting, and the humming of construction machinery continues here, the end of the deep sea pier programme is in sight.

The grain galleries which will pour a flood of grain into the deep sea ships this month are finished. Freight sheds are practically finished. There are two sidings ready for trains, which will haul incoming freight to the cities of the south. All that remains now is a bit of painting and cleaning up the construction debris.

From now until the middle of the month the workmen will move south, as their jobs are completed.

There will be no spending orgies in The Pas, Man., as in other years, when big gangs "went out" en masse. This year the money will dribble out in small numbers. They will not have big "stakes," as they had in the peak years. They are sober-minded this year.

The Department of Railways and Canada has a full summer's dredging programme, to carry out at the harbor. The marine railway for winter ships has to be completed. There will be considerable activity during the shipping season, when incoming cargoes of mixed freight will have to be handled, to say nothing of further grain shipments, which may come from the interior.

It is expected the season will close to a close here about October 15.

Armament Reduction

U.S. Administration Hopes International Conference Will Open The Way

Washington.—The United States administration hopes the forthcoming international economic conference, in addition to opening the way for an improvement of business conditions, will prove to be one of the steps leading to a reduction of world armaments.

This is one of the points being considered at the state department and the White House where thought is being given to the question of a group of men from which will be chosen the three American members of the separate committees that will plan the conference and survey the economic and financial phases of the problem.

Floods Destroy Grain

Thousands Of Farmers In Central Manchuria Lose Everything

Harbin, Manchuria.—Twenty-one days of unrelenting rains converted Central Manchuria into a sea and brought about a national disaster. Tens of thousands of enormous stocks of grain and soy beans lost. Thousands of farmers and other residents have lost their homes and are conking to the cities from the inundation.

The material damage is estimated at several hundred million Mexican dollars.

Harbin is isolated from the rest of the world by rail and the three branches of the Chinese Eastern railway are paralyzed.

Celebrates Birthday

Ottawa, Ont.—The Imperial Conference paused for a few minutes to do honor to Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, leader of the British delegation, on his 65th birthday anniversary. The congratulations of the assembled delegates were voiced by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, chairman of the conference, in a little speech. Mr. Baldwin replied with a few felicitous remarks. Mr. Baldwin was born on August 3, 1867—the year of Confederation.

Prison For Baldwin

London, England.—Sir Arthur Salter, at Liberal summer school, Oxford, said: "We have all been reading the speeches of Baldwin at Ottawa, and reflecting that if only Baldwin has the courage and persistence to translate into policy and practice the principle of his speeches he is certainly one of the great Liberal leaders of the day."

Officers of the firm said the strike removed all doubt regarding the value of their own claims. They said it was the largest silver strike made in the area.

IRISH REPUBLIC SAID TO BE AIM OF DE VALERA

Dublin, Ireland.—Senator Joseph Connolly, minister of posts and telegraphs, told the senate that creation of an Irish Republic was a policy of President Eamon de Valera and that Great Britain could not hope to get its war debts considered by the United States "so long as this question remains unsettled."

His declaration was in debate that preceded the senate's adoption of a resolution urging the government to reopen negotiations immediately with Britain with a view to settling the land annuities dispute which recently plunged the two countries into a tariff war.

(President de Valera told a mass meeting at Limerick last week he was not going to waste any more time in "fruitless discussions" to secure arbitration of the dispute, for which he said he saw little chance of solution.)

The resolution was introduced by J. C. Cunningham, Farmer Leader, member of the opposition majority. "Leave us within the British Commonwealth of Nations," Senator Cunningham said. "It is Ireland's only hope of salvation."

The policy of the De Valera Government, replied Senator Connolly, is one of creating an Irish republic—including the six northern counties (Ulster), and that he declared, would remain the policy of President de Valera until it is achieved.

President de Valera previously served a warning in the dail eireann that unless orders for coal are transferred to the continent he might apply a prohibitive tariff on British coal.

The De Valera Government has sought unsuccessfully to stem the flow of British coal into the Free State, merchants disregarding the new duty of $1 a ton and continuing to buy from the United Kingdom in large quantity. More than 50,000 tons of British coal have been imported since Sunday.

"Let us advance to new conquests—to the conquest of world peace and international amity," was the challenge delivered by the Prince of Wales at the unveiling.

Transients Coming West

Premier Bracken Of Manitoba Wires

Winnipeg, Man.—Protests were wired by Premier John Bracken, of Manitoba, to Hon. W. A. Gordon, Minister of Labor at Ottawa, against men from eastern Canada flocking into Manitoba on freight trains to seek harvest work. He stated police were preventing this travel eastward on freight trains, but allowing men to come west.

"Inquiries indicate there are plenty of men here to take off the harvest," said the premier's telegram, "and arrival of men from other parts of Canada will interfere with reduction of unemployment relief lists and aggravate situation here. We respectfully urge that police also stop this movement westward, otherwise our problem rendered much more difficult."

Planned To Finish Work Of Imperial Party On August 16

Ottawa, Ont.—It is planned to wind up the Imperial Economic Conference Tuesday, August 16, just short of a month from its opening. It looks like an all-round success. As a visiting London journalist puts it: "The conference, in spite of many trips, seems to be moving towards a successful issue."

The British delegation, headed by Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, is booked to sail on the "Empress of Britain," August 20.

Historic Home Burned

Old Landmark In Winnipeg Completely Destroyed By Fire

Winnipeg, Man.—One of Winnipeg's historic old homes, a 24-room mansion standing in four acres of treed grounds, built in the earliest days of Winnipeg's youth by the late A. F. Eden, one-time land commissioner of the Manitoba and Northwestern Railway, has been destroyed by fire.

The palatial house on Osborne Street and Assiniboine Avenue, known as the old Banfield residence, has stood vacant for some time.

NO CHANGE IS TO BE MADE IN RUSSIAN POLICY

Ottawa, Ont.—Canada will not alter her policy towards Soviet Russia.

More emphatic terms, Prime Minister R. B. Bennett made this answer to the Workers' Economic Union delegation which demanded removal of the embargo against the Soviet Union.

The "dumping" of steel, asbestos and lumber into the world's markets by Russia under Soviet labor with disastrous results to Canadian workers and farmers was instanced by the Prime Minister. "Do you believe the workers of this country should not have a fair chance in honest competition," he asked.

Reasoning with the deputation on many of the subjects on their programme, Premier Bennett stated that the Dominion Government was doing everything that this country could and towards relief, primarily a matter for the provinces and maintaining the country's national life. But, he emphasized, the laws of Canada must be observed.

"The laws of the country represent the will of the people through their elected representatives," the Prime Minister declared, "They protect you and they protect me. Law and order, as far as we can assure it, will be maintained. If you break it you will be punished as sure as the sun rises."

Tim Burk and the seven other Communists would remain in the penitentiary until they had served their terms. "These eight men," Mr. Bennett continued, "were found guilty on their own statements before the courts that they had received money from Russia, had acted under directions from Moscow. Our institutions will not be disturbed. There will be no protection to those who seek to destroy the state." Section 98 of the Criminal Code dealing with sedition and unlawful assembly would remain in force.

Mr. Bennett again stated there would be no non-contributory unemployment insurance under his administration.

The programme put forward as "demands" included non-contributory unemployment insurance, an embargo on any food and war material shipments to Japan, release of political prisoners in India and independence for the Indian provinces of Vinland, Toronto was the main spokesman for the delegation, which included J. B. MacLachlan, Cape Breton, and Mr. T. Wilkinson, North York.

RIOTS CONTINUE OVER ELECTIONS IN GERMANY

Berlin, Germany.—The prospect of a serious break between Chancellor von Papen's Government and Adolf Hitler, National Socialist leader, over the recent bloody riots in Germany, was intimated in the Rightist Press.

This was coupled with evidence that Hitler was spreading his organization efforts into other European countries and planning a powerful Nordic European alliance.

The riot squad was called out three times as a result of political clashes in Munich and the suburbs of Oberrhein. One National Socialist was wounded. Incendiary bombs were tossed into two department stores but they did not ignite. A restaurant and a nearby hotel for Socialist youths were set afire.

The ultra-Rightist Boersen-Zeitung said the government is considering a smashing emergency decree to end the rioting, in practically all of which Hitler's Nazis and his storm troops had a part.

Grain Show To Be Held

Definite Assurance Received and Work Is Going On

Regina, Sask.—The World's Grain Exhibition and Conference will be held at Regina next year.

Confirmation of the unofficial report published in The Leader-Post to this effect came when officials of the organization met at the grain show building and awarded a contract for painting the building to A. W. Banks, of Regina.

In addition, R. Beesley, of the staff of the Canadian Exhibition Commissioner, St. Catharines, has arrived in the city and has already taken charge of the interior decorative work of the building. A large quantity of grains and grasses has arrived to be used in the interior decorative work.

Thirteen tenders were opened by the committee of the World's Grain Show in charge of the building and the contract was awarded to A. W. Banks, of this city. The work will include murexco decorations for all walls of the building; ceilings, offices and the auditorium. The contract price was not announced at the close of the meeting.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our darling boy, Edward William Elliott, who passed to his rest in Blaimore on August the 14th, 1928.

"Four years have passed since that sad day.
When one we loved was called away.
The loss was great, the shock severe.
We little thought the end was near.
Some think that we forget him when they see us smile.
But they know not of the heartaches our smile hides all the while.
Just when his thoughts were brightest, and his hopes were best,
God called him from us to a home of eternal rest."

Lovingly remembered by Daddy, Mama and Jean, Chapman Camp, B.C.
